Things in the News

- This past week 2012 presidential hopeful Rick Perry allegedly said that his counterpart Mitt Romney belonged to a cult. Whether he said it or just acquiesced to it is debatable.

Here is what is important. Romney is by no stretch of the imagination a conservative. He is a liberal. While Massachusetts's governor he signed into law a bill that forced people to buy health insurance, and he approved a statute that allowed homosexuals to "marry."

Frankly, I am repulsed by any man who is so taken with himself. He is another Bush 41, obsessed with the idea of becoming president.

- The administration of Egypt's Hosni Mubarak was deposed, and instability has replaced it. Recently the army intentionally killed 25 Coptic Christians. I hope you are pleased President Barack Obama. You called for his overthrow.
- Unions have embraced the Wall Street protesters who are being prodded by communists like Van Jones, Obama's pick for Green Czar who was sent packing. Did you expect anything else? Since 1848, unions have operated from the standpoint that investors must be eradicated.

A number of union leaders are closeted communists. The correspondence of Walter Reuther, the son of a Socialist brewery worker and the head of the UAW (United Auto Workers), revealed that he thought that Soviet Russia had found a universal model that America should emulate.

I like what Herman Cain said to the protesters, "...move the demonstration to the White House."

- While interviewing former Senator Rick Santorum [R-PA], Fox News host Chris Wallace said that homosexuals should have the same rights as African-Americans who at one time were not fully integrated in the armed forces.

In other words homosexuals are not to be judged on the basis of their lifestyle choices. Wallace, a wise guy from New York whose bulb is dim and who has benefitted from nepotism, managed to insult each and every black person that has ever suffered discrimination.

- Michele Bachmann - my choice for president - said that if elected she will shut down the DOE (U.S. Department of Education) and the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency).

An argument could be made for allowing the EPA to continue at one-tenth of its existing size, but the DOE is altogether superfluous, a tool in the hands of liberals who would like to program our children to just nod when the teacher dictates. This is called social engineering and it goes back to 18th century French philosopher Jean Rousseau.

- Obamacare will force insurance agencies to pay for abortion services. This represents a refusal on the part of the President to keep a promise he made when pushing his health care agenda. Catholic Bishops are up in arms.

What did they expect from a Chicago activist with a murky past? Casuistry is a way of life with Obama.

I assure you that there will be more revelations of that kind if Obama is re-elected.

Ever yours,
