

Yankee Steve's Column
for the Week of September 8, 2011

9/11/11

The religion of Islam is all about war. The eminent historian Philip Schaff [1819-93] wrote that Islam's greatest missionary is the sword.

The Koran, Islam's most trusted document, not only permits war, but actually calls war an exercise in holiness.

The Islamist, who makes war against the infidels (those who refuse to believe that Mohammed was sent by God), is the true Muslim. I can say that because the religion itself does not provide for any substantial changes. It was designed for purists only.

Therefore the real Muslim has embraced the difficult parts of the Koran which call on the faithful to use violence so that the world that exists outside of Islam will at last have to acknowledge Mohammed's God. You should know Mohammed's God is very different from the God of the Holy Bible.

If you can judge people by their actions then it is quite apparent that Mohammed was not sent by God but by Satan. Jesus said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Unless I am mistaken, all current conflicts in the world have Muslims stoking the fire.

In spite of the crimes against humanity perpetrated by Muslims, the everyday Muslim lacks the one thing that all true followers of God have - the ability to feel compunction. The followers of Mohammed, do they hang their heads in shame when Muslims perpetrate crimes against humanity with dull regularity?

No, they make trouble for a comic book publisher in Clayton, MO because he wants children to know that Islamic terrorists are the reason why September 11, 2001 is just like December 7, 1941 – dates "which will live in infamy."

These peaceful Muslims that we hear about are in an uproar, so much so that the publisher Wayne Bell has had to call in the F.B.I.

I will strike a bargain with Muslim leaders. I will stop criticizing Islam when -

-Muslims, the so-called moderates, openly and en masse denounce Islamist radicals [I think this will never happen because Muslims in reality harbor the opinion that America should be punished.]

-Muslims realize that the most scientific advancements have been made in Christian countries which questions Islam's openness to progress.

-Muslims admit that Mohammed should not have acted as if he was above the law and that by any reckoning, he was a flawed human, and in that respect unlike the openly imperfect prophets and the apostles.

-Muslims recognize that the Koran is distinguished by its' incoherence which would surely indicate that it is not from God. God is not the author of confusion.

-Muslims appreciate that Christians have done more works of charity than Islam ever has or ever will do.

-Muslims acknowledge that they not only disagree with infidels but think them unworthy of the equal justice.

When Muslims do all the above I will stop criticizing. Of course, I don't expect that to happen anytime soon.

Ever yours,

Yankee Steve Cakouros

oldlineconservative.com